

Nation-states and the Global Environment: New Approaches to International Environmental History

By Erika Marie Bsumek, David Kinkela, Mark Atwood Lawrence

Oxford University Press Inc. Paperback. Book Condition: new. BRAND NEW, Nation-states and the Global Environment: New Approaches to International Environmental History, Erika Marie Bsumek, David Kinkela, Mark Atwood Lawrence, Hardly a day passes without prominent journalists, policymakers, academics, or scientists calling attention to the worldwide scale of the environmental crisis confronting humankind. While climate change has generated the greatest alarm in recent years, other global problems - desertification, toxic pollution, species extinctions, drought and deforestation, to name just a few - loom close behind. The scope of the most pressing environmental problems far exceeds the capacity of individual nation-states, much less smaller political entities. This disjuncture between the enormous scale of challenges confronting the global community and the inadequacy of existing governmental mechanisms is, of course, a familiar feature of international affairs in the era of accelerated globalization since the end of the Cold War. As flows of money, goods, labor, and information (not to mention pollutants) have become increasingly global, governments have failed to keep pace by establishing new cooperative regimes or ceding authority to supranational regulatory institutions. Moreover, just as the problems confronting them have become more acute, nation-states have seen their authority diminished by economic globalization, the...
